Hongkong, June 14rm, 1905,

THAT the principal rations of the world and more especially the United States, should in the present juncture desire peace goes without saying; that the two nations who have embarked on war should from personal reasons have other actuating motives is also incontrovertible. In the first instance the war presents an entirely different aspect as we view it from Russia's or Japan's point of view. To the one it seems an uncalled for attempt to block the natural advance of Russia in the fulfilment of a destiny forced upon her by natural causes and as such almost a flying in the face of Providence: to Japan it looked but as the last act of a wanton game of aggression, to be followed in case of success by the absorption of herself, and the extinction of Japan as a nation. For three centuries Russia has advanced eastward almost without a check; and this advance has been looked upon, if not altogether with complacency, in the majority of cases without any display of jealousy on the part of the continental Powers of Europe. Russia, they informed us, had undertaken to carry the blessings of civilisation into the darker parts of Asia, and the condition of Central Asia under Russian control was contrasted with its former state of misrule under the native

Strong to all outward appearance, her foundations have been but iron mingled with rotten clay. The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Echo de Paris repeats the story-recently circulated that the members of the sect of the Old Believers, a body well-known for its fabulous wealth, have decided to give the enormous sum of one thousand million roubles (£100,000,000) towards the construction of a second line, of the Trans-Another, but perhaps the least pressing, Siberian Railway.

WHY COLONIALS FALL SICK.

colonisation, the British Medical Journal endorses the statement made by Sir Patrick Manson before the Royal Geographical Society in 1898 that 99 per cent. of tropical diseases were caused by germs. Climate may cause discomfort and enervation, and may predispose to disease, but the real enemy of the white man in tropical climes and the great obstacle to colonisation is the wealth of parasitic life, which finds him a ready prey. The prosperity of our Empire, perhaps the existence of our country, depends to a large extent on the successful development of the material resources of our colonies, and this in turn depends on the increased possibilities of acclimatisation. This is the chief practical problem which the schools of tropical medicine have been brought into existence to solve.

THE "GLOBE" DISCOVERS HONGKONG'S VALUE.

Few people, if asked which was the second shipping port in the world, would have said Hongkong; yet the latest official returns of vessels entered at the five greatest ports show it to be not only second, and well ahead of New York, but very likely in the near future to beat London and to be first. The fact, suggests the Globe, gives a new importance to events in the Far East. We cannot afford to give anything away in a quarter where so large an import and export trade is done, and which, besides, is certain in the future to undergo enormous development.

BONGKONG SANITARY BOARD.

A meeting of the Sanitary Board was held yesterday afternoon in the Board Room. Dr. F. Clark (President) presided, and there were also present Major Josling, Dr. Pearse, Hon. Mr. A. W. Brewin, Mr. F. J. Badoley, Mr. Fung Wa Chun, Mr. Lau Chu Pak, Mr. H. W. Slade, Mr. A. Rumjahn, and Mr W. Bowen-Rowlands (Secretary).

A MOTION.

The REGISTRAR GENERAL (Hon.) Mr. Brewin) pursuant to nation moved: "-That the "Medical Officer of Health be instructed to 13th May, showed the following figures: "report what sanitary considerations should be " under Section 188 (5) of the Public Health and " referred to a sub-committee consisting of the "Police, Mr. Pollock and Mr. Rumjahu to con-" sider and recommend what guiding principles "should be adopted by the Boardin future cases."

He said that all he wished to obtain was as much consistency as possible in considering applications of this kind. He was quite "ure that laudlords would agree with him that they would like to be in a positon h) on any application, but under the (including 14 infected) in Kowloon. present circumstances it was impossible to predict. He did not mean to throw any slur on the Board, of which he was a member, but unless they were guided by precedents it would be impossible to be consistent, as the personnel of the Board, was always changing. For instance, there had been three Medical Officers of Health during the space of three months, and he would refer to the previous meeting (when the Hongkong Hotel application was considered) and the meeting when the application from the hotel in Kowloon was considered. Of the nine members present at that meeting only three were present at the last. Another reason for being very careful was on account of the small number of the Board, and on occasions several were unable to be present. At the previous meeting three members were absent out of ten. That gave a greater value to the single vote than it ought to have.

The speaker also referred to Mr. H. E. Pollock, K.C., not having voted at the previous meeting, on account of want of information.

The PRESIDENT-Oh, no, that was not the reason. He is a shereholder in the Hongkong Hotel Company. I have much pleasure in seconding the motion.

The motion was carried.

A TEA HOUSE PETITION. A petition from the proprietors of tea houses yesterday came before the Sanitary Board. The petitioners prayed that two persons might be allowed to sleep in their bake-houses at night instead of one. They said that whereas it was expressly provided by the bye-laws relating to bake-houses that "no person other than one care-taker shall occupy between the hours of 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. any premises used as a bakehouse, except persons actively engaged in carrying on the work of the bakery." This provision worked as a very great hardship. There was customarily a counter in the front part of the bakeries for selling cakes and biscuits, the money being kept near by. The usual custom in Chinese shops was for the accountant to sleep on the counter, and, as a protection against was necessary that two men should be kept in the shop, as one man was liable to be overpowered by robbers (protending to be night soil coolies) and gagged. An extra hand, moreover, was required to follow the genuine night soil scolie, who comes round between one and three o'c'ock in the morning, to see that he commits no pilfering while the accountant remained at his proper post near the counter. The pelitioners were in a small way of business and so did not bake at night. Another reason given was that an extra care-taker was required to keep watch over the pork man who brings his pork to the houses instead of one. Dr. Pearse, the M.O.H., in a minute did no recommend that the bye-laws be modified. The caretakers might sleep on the same tables where food was prepared. This description of premises were amongst the most difficult to keep in order.

Mr. Lau, Chu Pak, in a minute, supported the petition saying that the concessions could cancelled the moment the caretakers were found sleeping on the tables on which the cakes were prepared. The Captain Superintendent of Police, minuted, thought the petitioners should invited to give particulars of the alloged frequent pilferings by night-soil coolies, and state whether they were reported to the police.

The Registrar General (Hon, Mr. Brewin), in a minute, [queried whether the regulation had been enforced uniformly for the last eight years? When laundries were licensed there for combination, trust, strength and work in was some trouble about caretakers and it was connection with the association, and continuedruled that if the floor was partitioned off by The association might make itself more of an latticework into two rooms and the laundry aggressive body, by bringing before young work confined to one room the caretakers could | women and young men the claims of our King, sleep in the other.

The PRESIDENT said they should be very careful with regard to food. Originally they did not wish to allow any caretakers to sleep in the bake-houses, but, however, one was with food, so it behoved them to be very particular. He proposed that the tea-house kerpers be notified that the bye-law could not be altered.

HONGKONG YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

Favoured with a beautiful afternoon, and by the kindness of H. E. the Governor who placed Government House and grounds at their disposal, the conversazione held by the ladies of the local branch of the Y.W.C.A. to commemorate the jubilee of the British Association was a pronounced success. Made comfortable neath the shelter of trees on the grounds, the ladies were regaled with light refreshments and selections of sweet music played during the afternoon by the Royal West Kents' Band. H. E. the Governor and his private secretary, Mr. Ponsonby, were in attendance.

The ladies responsible for making the afternoon such a brilliant success were:-Lady Houre (President). Mrs. Pearcy (Vice-President), Misses Eyre and Pitts (secretaries). Mrs. Quinn (Treasurer), Mesdames Barnes-Lawronce, Stringer, Nicolls, Whitehead, Woodward and Lowe, Miss (Dr.) Sepree und Miss Skipton.

HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP HOARE said the first thing they wanted to do was to send the following message to the British National Council of the Y.W.C.A. at Home :-

"We, the members and friend softhe Hongkong branch of the Young Women's Christian Association, soud our warmest congratulations to the British National Council on the completion of the Association's fifti th year of work and labour of love for young womer. We desire to add our grateful testimony to the success and blessing, which, by God's grace, have crowned their efforts." This being unanimously agreed to, His LORDSHIP continued: -- When I came to China some 30 years ago; there was one unmarried missionary lady connected with the Church Missionary Society. Now there are scores; muy safely say hun treds, and I suppose literal- the average Shanghai voter. ly there are thousands of numerried ladies con. nected with this Society's work in China. quote this as an illustrative fact of the wonderful development there has been in the independence and in the work of young women. One cannot help feeling thankful that just at the time when this development has started, God has put it into the hearts of some of Hisservants to start a Young Women's Christian Association, Side by side with this independence, activity and work there has also been the growing up of this Association. We cannot, of course, boast Y.W.C.A. in Hongkong for 50 years, but I should imagine that 50 years ago there were very few young women in Hongkong, and at that time it does not seem to have been a very desirable place for young women to live in. It is very different now, however, even to what shop at about two in the morning, such pork it was when I came out 30 years ago. There forming part of the ingredients of the cakes baked about five or six a.m. They just wanted is now a great increase in family life, as people two men to be allowed to sleep in the bakein Hongkong, Shanghai and the treaty ports. A great deal of the work of the Colony is now being done by the young women who are going into stores, offices and educational establishments, and doing their full share in the development of the place. A development of independence and activity like this is bound to be attended by daugers, such as worldliness. More independence, more work and more activity all means more temptation, therefore, I think that God put it into the hearts of the people here to start this Association to pice the young women strength and courage to face difficulties. I am sure an Association of this kind is most important in the Colony of Hongkong, although I am not much of a believer in multiplying societies, as it is quite possible for us to have too many wheels within wheels. HIS Londship dwelt at length on the necessity and leading them into his service.

Mr. RUTLEBGE then proposed the following | Tuesday, the 20th inst.

resolution. "This gathering of the Y.W.C.A. members and friends resolves to place on record its sense allowed with a good deal of misgiving. The ten of strong gratitude to Almighty God for all houseshad broad staircases leading right into the the uplifting of womanhood in our country in bake-houses and numerous people slept upstairs. every aspect during the past 50 years; and Plague, moreover, might have something to do further resolves to express its resolution to use those granted talents of education, position and expansion, to the Glory of God, and the gain of other women, both at home and in other lands, who are still without the knowledge of direct.

The REGISTRAR GENERAL seconded and it | Christ and the blessings His salvation and Service bring," after which he read a paper dealing with the rise of the Y.M.C.A. and Various minor applications for exemption or Y.W.C.A. and other kindred associations during the last 50 years.

Miss Eyne in seconding the resolution said-

I should like in the name of the whole Association to thank the Bishop for his kindness, in. taking the chair to-day, and also to publicly thank the Bishop and Mrs. Hears for their constant and continued kindness and generosity to us as an Association. We have no better friends. Where should we meet on Tuesdays if we had not the pleasant and cool promises at St. Paul's, and where should we hold our so ial ovenings if it were not for the kind generosity and hospitality of Mrs. Hoare: I am sure you all join with me in heartily thanking them (applause). I would also thank the members who so willingly helped us to-day especially the refreshment committee who have gons to considerable trouble. I think a mistake has been made with regard to the name of this Association. A great many think it is for Christian women, and therefore a good many do not care to join it. The name is, not Christian Association for young women, but Young Women's Christian Association, and it is not an association for only those who subscribe themselves Christians. This Association was properly organised in 1898; before that it was run in a very humble way at West Point. Our association does not provide much pleasure for young women. Everyone will agree with me that Hongkong does not exactly stand in need of provision for pleasure, and there is a great deal too much seeking for it. The greatest object of our Association is to provide something apart from pleasure-spiritual help for our young women. Our grand Association in England makes no stand about rank. Queen Alexandra is a patronges, and one of its most carnest members | well suited to " make a man" of him. was our beloved Queen Victoria-not a patroness only, but a member the same as we are. The Princess Christian is also a patroness, and we in this Colony ought to put aside all feelings with regard to rank and heartily work for the sake of our King and His kingdom. Our membership is over 100, but as the Bishop said, we need to be more aggressive, and surely we will make this jubi se the starting time to promote social, moral, intellectual and spiritual well being, and to afford protection to those who need it, and help them to avoid the dangers and temptations which they may meet. The resolution was unanimously carried. HIS LORDSHIP THE BISHOP, in replying to the rote of thanks said-I don't think we do much to help the association, and I am quite cortain that everything Mrs. Houre has done, it has been a pleasure for her to do, and it would be a great loss for her not to be able to do it. I wish to propose a vote of thanks to H. E. the Governor for his kind hospitality in allowing the Association to meet in the garden and in this room.

.The vote was carried by acclamation, and the meeting closed with the benediction.

The momentous vote of about 295 to five in favour of the Municipal Council retaining the Electric Department is thus explained by our contemporary :- " No doubt the love of fair play had much to do, as we have said, with this result, a result which does credit to the commonsense and right sporting instincts of the community.

That is to say, a popular impression that Messra Bruce, Peebles & Co. (the almost successful tenderers for the tramway scheme) had not been fairly dealt with resulted in decision contrary in principle to the kindred decision of last year.

Or, more plainly still, this decision (which, be it noted, we approve) was not given on the merits of the question; but was the result of a prejudice created by a side issue. Evidently, we might have called the Shanghai voter sheepy without unfairness.

In the Parliamentary Papers of May 9th Dr. Shipman asked Lord Balcarres, as the representative of the First Commissioner of Works, if he would explain why there was removed from the statue of Lord Beaconstield on the anniversary of his death a shield composed of primroses and forget-me-nots bearing a quotation from one of his speeches.

Lord Balcarres replied that the wreath was removed because it was felt that references to current controversy were out of place in the decoration of monuments of departed statesmen. The quotation on the shield, it will be remembered, was: "Protection is not only dead but damned-B."

ADMIRAL TOGO.

A SERTCH OF HIS CARGER. The name of Admiral Togo Heihachiro will rank in history with that of Nelson; and the following extracts from a sketch of his life, compiled from Japanese sources from the Japan Chronicle, will be read with much interest at the present time.

Admiral Togo was born on December 22nd, 1847, at his father's residence at Kagoshima, which has produced many men of naval and military renown. His father was a retainer of Prince Shimadau, Lord of Sat-uma, and the Admiral is his fourth son. The three older brothers of Admiral Togo took part as rebels in the atsuma rising of 1877, and two of thom were killed in battle, while the third died shortly after the rebellion had been supressed. The Admiral, therefore, has no brother or sister living. His father, who was a magistrate his clan for thir teen years, died at the age of about 50. His mother is described as a model wife well fitted to be the mother of samural. Not only did she possess all womanly virtues, but she was very strict and careful in the upbringing of her sons; and the early training under his wise and courageous in ther has no doubt largely contributed towards the making of the man whose fame has now reached the remotest corners of the earth. Admiral Togo's mother died some years ago at the age of over

The Satsuma men are generally credited with undaunted courage, as is attested by canyo's well-known poem. Those who know something of Japan's history during the past forty years or so will readily understand the important part that the Satsuma men have played in the warlike deeds that have taken place in the interval. Between the age of 12 and 16 Admiral Togo received his literary education from the great Saine. He also studied fencing and wrestling. as was usual with the youth of the time. Satsuma, as has been said, was a most militant clan, and in consequence of this it has produced many swashbucklers. The Admiral, however, has never shown any such tendency, but he is, as C unt Kabayama remarks, as quiet as a girl, though none could be more resolute and cour weous than he at heart. The stirring period in which he had been brought up was Admiral Togo received his baptism of fire at the age of 17. On September 14th, 1862, it will be remembered, an Englishman named Richardson was attacked and killed by Namamugi, near Yohohama, by the retainers of Prince Shimadzu, of Satsuma, on account, it is alleged, of his having got in the way of the Prince's armed procession, together with two other English gentlemen and a lady. Bri ish Government demanded of the Bakufu Government an indomnity of $450,000 for the outrage, to which the latter was obliged to yield. The British authorities further demanded the large indemnity of $100,000 from Prince Shimadza, who was held to be responsible for the tragedy. As the Prince failed to comply with the demand, a British squadron, consisting of seven warships, under the command of Admiral Kuper, was sent to Kagoshima, where they arrived on the 11th August, 1863. On its arrival at Kagoshima the Admiral sent to the Prince an ultimatum that would expire at the end of twenty-four hours, but it was peremptorily rejected by the Prince. On August 15th after the squadron had been in the bay several days, a shot was fired from the forts and in reply Kagoshima was bombarded by the British squadron and a large part of the town was destroyed by fire. Most of the Japanese forts were dismantled, in spite of a typhoon which raged throughout the day; but the squadron also suffered considerably. The captain and commander of the flag-ship were killed on the bridge by a round shot, and the total loss in killed and wounded was sixty-three. Admiral Togo, who was then 17 years old, was in one of the forts and assisted in the firing at the warships. In the collisions that occurred between the Tokugawa men and the Imperialists in the Restoration period. Togo, young though he was, distinguished himself on several occasious. Exa-perated by the lawlessness of the Satsumu clausmen, the retainers of Tokugawa made a night attack on the Satsuma yashiki at Mita. Tokyo, on December 25th, 1867. A desperate fight ensued in which many were killed and wounded on both sides. About sixty Satsuma men took refugeon board the warship "Kochomaru," belonging to Prince Shimadzu, which happened to be at auchor at Shinugawa. The ship, in order to escape the enemy's pursuit immediately weighed anchor, and had started on her journey when she was confronted by the Tokagawa ship "Kaiten-mara" which was larger and more strongly armed than the The "Kaitea" was commanded by Enomoto Kamajiro (now Viscount), who was afterwards appointed Minister of the Navy

In an engagement in lokyo Bay that ensued the "Kocho" was badly worsted, her hull being literally riddled with shot. She, however managed to reach Shimoda, where temporary repairs were effected, and she finally arrived a Kobe after much difficulty and delay. Among the officers of the Salsuma steamer "Kocho was Ito Sukeyoshi (now Admiral), who was Commander of the Japanese Squadron during the Japan-China War. These events, and the endeavour to gain contween the Tokugawa Shogun and the combined clans of Satsuma. Choshu, Tosa, and Higo, resulting in the battles of Toba and Fushimi (near Kyoto). At this time young Togo, who happened to be in Kyoto, received an order with other men at once to proceed to Hyego and embark in the Satsuma warship " Kosuga. The latter, after taking in a complement of officers and men, went out in search of the every, when she met the "Kaiyo," commanded by Enomoto, in the Inland Sea. The fight between the two ships resulted in the withdrawal of the " Kaiyo " from action. It is said that Togo, a young officer of 22, even then distinguished himself as a brave and efficient seaman on this occasion.

Although the Shogun Keiki decided restore his office, together with the Yedo castle, to the Emperor after the battle of Fushimi, some of his retainers were determined upon fighting for their chief to the end. Out of the fifteen war-sbips possessed by the Shogun only four were surrendered to the Imperialists, while the remainder were seized by the Tokugawa retainers. On board of these ships Enomoto, Matsudaira, and other Tokugawa men fled to Hakodate, where they established their headquarters. In March, 1869, an expedition, consisting of 6,500 troops and five war-ships, started from Shinagawk at Tokyo for the suppression of the Hakodate robels. Among the vessels was the "Kosuga," on which was To .: 0. Admiral Enomoto, who, commanded the Tokugawa ships, intending to attack the Imperialists on the way, left Hakodate with his flagship Kaiten" and two others. A storm sprang up, and the " Kaiten" was separated from the two other ships, so that she alone approached Kuwagosaki, where the enemy's vessels were anchored. By displaying the flag of the Stars and. Stripes the "Kaiten" succeeded in coming within range of the Imperialist vessels without detection Suddenly the "Kaiten" hauled down the American flag and hoisted that of the Rising Sun, and befere the Imperialists c uld fully realise the meaning of what had occurred the "Kaiten" brought all her guns to hear on the iron-clad "Musashi." None of the shots, however, told. Meanwhile the "Kaiten" came close to its opponent with the object of boarding and many of the Tokugawa men climbed on the "Masashi" with drawn swords. Several men were thus cut down on board their own ship. Owing to the close situation of the torn ships the other vessels could not fire on te 'Kaiten," fearing that they might inflict damage on the" Musashi." A rifle fire, however. was poured into the "Kaiten," the commander of which, Koga Gango, was killed on the bridge. Finally the "Kaiten" retired after this sanguinary opisodo and returned to Hakodate.

The "Kosuga," on which, as stated, was Togo. encountered the Tokugawa ship "Takao, which, unable to withstand the "Kosuga's" fire, took to flight. In making her escape she ran ushore on the coast of Omoto-mura, Nambu, and was blown up by the crew. In several engagements that followed on land and sea in the neighbourhood of Hakodate, Togo showed himself to be a sailor of no ordinary quality. After the surrender of the rebels Togo returned to Tokyo, this being in August, 1869. By this time Togo had made up his mind to devote his life to the Navy. He visited Yok hama and studied English, availing himself of whatever assistance was obtainable at that time. He did this as a preliminary to going to England, where he intended to complete his navaleducation. Togo and some fellowstudents repeatedly petitioned the Government to be sent to England, and their wish was at last fulfilled in March 1871, when they were ordered by the Government to proceed to England for purposes of study. The party consisted of twelve young men, among whom were, besides Togo, Harada Tosuke (now Superintendent of the Naval Arsenal). The party, when they went on board a British steamer, clad in ill-fitting foreign dress and wearing old and worn-out boots, is said to have presented a very comical picture. Very little is known or published as to Togo's doings in England during his sojourn there for eight years, but it will be remembered that the English clergymun in whose house Togo was placed recently published an account in which he spoke most highly of his pupil's character. For some time after his arrival, Togo applied himself more particularly to acquiring a knowledge of English. Then he tried to enter the Thames Naval Academy, but he was unable to do so owing to the rule that no foreigner could be admitted into the school. He joined a training ship at Plymouth, however, and diligently studied all branches of naval science. The term of his study abroad expired in April 1876, but in view of the construction of the Hiyei, which was then in progress in England, his return home was postponed pending its completion in order that he could return by her. It was in May 1878 that Togo returned to his native country on board the new Japanese warship Hiyei.

During Togo's absence many changes had taken place in Japan. Especially it must have been a source of great sorrow to him that Suigo Takemori, his teacher and exemplar, had died and with him Togo's two brothers, fighting against the Imperial troops. Yet it may be regarded as rather fortunate for the country that the Admiral was in England at the time of the Satsuma rebellion, for if he had been in Jupan he might have been induced to join the rebellion and have shared the fate of his teacher and brothers.

After his return to Japan Togo held commissions on different war-ships, but it was not until the outbreak of hostilities between Japan and China in 1894 that his name was prominently brought before the public. In the engagement in the Yellow Sea and the blockade of Wei-hai-wei that followed, Admiral Togo played a prominent part. Subsequently he was sent to Formoss and the Pescadores to take occupation as commander of the Standing Squadron, and be remained there for saveral months until his mission was achieved despite the unhealthy and trying climatic conditions of the islands. During the progress of the Chino-Japanese war Togo was promoted to the position of Rear-Admiral and appointed to the command of the Standing Squadron. After the conclusion of peace he held several important posts in the Admiralty, and in 1902 he was transferred to Maidzuru as Commander-in-Chief of the port where he remained until the outbreak of the present war called him forth to active sea

POLICEMAN SENT TO PRISON.

A Shanghai policeman named Joseph Henry Sidney has been committed to prison for six months for extorting money ly munaces from a Cantonese. The trial was by ju y. His Lordship said: Joseph Henry Sydney

You have been convicted by the jury of the orime with which you are charged. In passing soutence I think it right to say that I am perfectly aware that the police in this country are placed in a very difficult position. They are placed in a position in which the temptations are greater than they are in a European community. While they do their duty they may be assured that so far as this Court is able to support them it will do so, but when I find that people abuse the trust which has been committed to them and take advantage of their position in the police to do what we have found you guilty of doing it is a very serious matter. I must take into consideration also in passing sentence the very great mass of this community and not only of this community but of all Europeans throughout Chine, who should that the natives are protected from any improper conduct on the part of those whom our introduction into this country has placed in a measure in charge of them.

IS BRITISH SANITY GOING?

GHOST IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS. Not long ago, a famous' novelist-M.P., Mr. Rider Haggard, was widely quoted as the author of a dog-com-ghost s'ory which was gravely discussed by press and public. Now another novelist-M.P., Sir Gilbert Parker, comes forward with a ghost seen in the House of Commons. The journal whose account follows headed the story "astral spirit," "woird phenomenon" &c. We republish it to show our readers to what depths of silliness an idle age can come, feeling sure that in Hongkong, where men are mostly too busy to be moonstruck, they will say "astral fiddlesticks." A popular Unionist member of the House Commons, writes the Express Lobby correspondent, has been the unconscious cause of an incident unparalleled in the history of St. Step-hen's. We should hesitate to ask credence! for so remarkable a narrative, but for the fact that it is associated with two members, in the persons of Sir Gilbert Parker and Sir Henry Meysey-Thompson. Shortly before the Easter rising of Parliament for the recess, Major Sir Carne Rasch, the Unionist who sits for the Chelmsford division, was overtaken by influenza, which developed into neurosia. He grew seriously ill, but stuck to his post to "help Hood" (the Ministerial Whip).

During his absouce from the evening sitting prior to the rising for the holidays, his friend Sir Gilbert Parker was grieved and alarmed to They were only one bench and an angle apart.
Sir Carne Rusch was noticed to be deadly pale; of British men-of-war. [The Oldhamia's men see him seated near his usual place.

his eyes closed, as if in approaching sleep; his were, it will be remembered, landed at Swatow.] chin was sunk between his hunched-up shoulders. He sat in a profound silence. Sir Gilbert nodded, and the next moment Sir Carne Rasch had vanished. As he could not have moved without being noticed, his disappearance attracted comment, and it was then recalled by Sir Gilbert that when he sat down Sir Carne was not in his place.

One of the two members has studied theosophy and the occult science of astral phenomena, and he at once said to his companion, "Rasch is either dead or dying." Subsequent inquiry, however, showed Sir Carne to be on the mend. He is himself somewhat puzzled at all this. The only explanation which he can offer is his illness and the struggle between the temptation to stick to his House duties and to go to bed. The account given of the incident by Sir Gilbert Parker is striking and impressive, Sir Gilbert is positive as regards the following facts, given in his own words: "I wished to take part in the debate in progress, but missed being called. As I swung. round to resume my seat I was attracted first by seeing Sir Carne Resch out of his place, and then by the position he occupied. I knew that he had been ill, and in a cheery way nedded towards him and said, ' Hope you are better.' "But he made no sigh and uttered no reply. This struck me as odd. My friend's position was his and jet not his. His face was remarkably pallid. He sat hunched up. His expression was steely. It was altogether a stony presentment-grim, almost resentful.

"I thought for a moment. Then I turned again towards Sir Carne Rasch, and he had disappeared. That puzzled me, and I at one went in search of him. I expected, in fact, to overtake him in the Lobby. But Rasch was not there. No one had seen him. I tried both the Whips and door-keeper, equally without avail. No one had seen Sir Carne Rasch.

"I went round the House, inquiring in all the corridors and to the same end-Sir Carne Rasch had not been seen. : Going again to the Lobby, I heard that Sir Henry Meysey-Thompson, who was at the Lobby post-office, had also been inquiring for the major, but without result. "I joined Sir Henry, and we exchanged

But Sir Henry Meysey-Thompson had only a prosaic and Parliamentary reason for seeing Sir Carne Rasch. Still he was greatly impressed by what Sir Gilbert Parker said, and the two gentlemen made notes of the hour and the day. When seen some days later by both members, Sir Carne Rasch, with soldierly light-heartedness, cheerfully accepted the congratulations of his friends that he was not dead, went home, told the story, and made every one in his family appropriately miserable.

Sir Gilbert Parker, though still troubled, airily admits that he may have been mistaken. But Sir Carne Rasch does not think he was mistaken at all. Sir Henry Meysey-Thompson, though also congratulating the major upon not having joined the majority instead of coming back to "help Hood," does not appear to have "seen things," Yet he had a singular desire to talk with him, and his desire led him to make inquiry at the post-office. Here he was joined by Sir Gilbert, and the brilliant novelist confessed himself "puzzled, and utterly at a loss." There is no doubt whatever in the mind of Sir Carne Rasch himself as to the presence in some strange evanescent form. He had been " precipitated" in the spirit, as he now believes to "help Hood," of whom he was constantly thinking. In fact, the genial Government Whip had become to hims veritable theosophic manifestation. Paracelsus and the old alchemists believed that everyone had an astral spirit peculiar to him. In the medieval times the notion arose. that these spirits were either fallen angels or the souls of the dead, or spirits deriving their [1062] origin from fire, whose location was the air. Sir Gilbert Parker, in concluding, said the mystery naturally turned upon the question whether Sir Carne Rasch was in the House at > the time. This question Sir Carno Rasch has answered. He was ill at home, and could not have been in his place at the House. But meantime Sir Carne Rasch enjoys his recovered health.

THE "ICHANG'S." EXPERIENCE.

After the Ichang left Hongkong for the north, she had an interesting experience that is. thus reported in the No.C. Daily News :-The C. N. S. Ichang, which arrived here on June 8th from Hongkong, reports: At 1220 p.m. on the 4th instant, in Lat. 22 deg. 32' 12"
N., Long. 115 deg. 30' 45" E., a Russian Volunteer cruiser bore down on us. flying the aignal "Stop immediately." The steamer was stopped at once, and fifteen minutes later a boat was lowered from the cruiser, and we were aboarded by three Russian officers and signalman. Our papers were overhauled and our captain was interrogated. The signalman was meanwhile exchanging signals with the cruiser. On informing the Russian officers of the late engagement between the Baltic and Japan ese fleets, they refused to believe a word of it, but treated the matter simply as a huge joke : It appeared that they had on board the crew of the Manchester str. Oldhamia, whom they wished the Ichang to bring on from Hongkong to Shanghai. At this time an Indo-China S. N. C.'s str. which had been following us, was held up, and the crew of the presumably sunken str. Oldhamia were transferred to her and she shortly afterwards steered in a southerly direction. The crew of the Russian cruiser seemed to be in good spirits and were a fine-looking lot of men. On the fo'csle head the guns' crows were at stations, awaiting orders. After 65 minutes detention

It is reported from Peking that the French Minister recently tried to obtain on behalf of a French syndicate for the construction of a railway between Kueilin, the capital of Kwangsi province, and Linchon a city nearly. sixty miles distant from Kueilin, offering, as an inducement, no less than ten million taels as a lean to the Kwangsi provincial Government to be used on public works improvements in that province. It is further reported that only one Grand Councillor favoured the proposal, while influenced by the strong protest of Vicercy Tsên and Governor Li Chin-hsi, Kuangsi, (who had been communicated with on the subject) the other four Grand Councillors including Prince Ching vetoed the proposition. In view of the deep suspicions entertained by all Chinese since 1884 with regard to French aims in South-eastern China, and especially in Kuangsi, whose bounderies are coterminous with Franch territory in Indo-China, it is not surprising (comments the N.-C. Daily News) that, even if the high authorities of the Two Knang province had not opposed the proposal, any present attempt at increasing French influence in the South-eastern provinces of China should be promptly rejected at Peking
